8:45-10:15am	Session I: Compensation in Academic Pediatrics: Benchmarking, Workforce Pressures, and Strategies for Faculty Recruitment and Retention This panel will explore compensation in academic pediatric departments from multiple perspectives, including how departments use available benchmark data, national trends across academic medicine and pediatric subspecialties, the influence of workforce and payment policy on salary structures, and the implications of total compensation for recruitment, retention, and leadership roles in pediatrics.
10:15-10:30am	Break
10:30am-12:00pm	Session II: Creating a Culture of Wellbeing: Reducing Burnout, Strengthening Retention, and Demonstrating Value Speakers: Angela Meyers, MD, Children's Mercy and Gina Geis, MD, Albany Medical Center Pediatric departments vary widely in their approach to physician wellbeing, yet burnout and turnover carry significant consequences for faculty, patients, and institutional performance. This session will highlight emerging evidence, practical tools, and real-world examples of successful wellbeing and retention programs. Participants will explore strategies to improve professional fulfillment across career stages, understand the financial implications of physician burnout and turnover, and learn how data-driven tools can help make the case for institutional investment. Attendees will leave with practical approaches for building a sustainable culture of wellbeing while strengthening faculty retention and organizational resilience.
